SECTION 2 – ACADEMIC DETAILS

Subject Rationale
This subject provides students with grounding in the knowledge, skills and judgements necessary to clinically apply flower essence therapy. Students study flower essences and their application in working with commonly presenting physical, emotional and psychological states that may present in their clinical practice. Students evaluate both classical and current literature for individual flower essences and their clinical blends for acute and chronic treatment of emotional and/or mental and/or physical symptoms. This allows students to apply flower essences singly and in combination to clinical management of specific health-related issues.

Learning Outcomes
1. Discuss the history, doctrines and manufacture of different versions/systems of flower essence therapy.
2. Compare and contrast different systems of flower essence therapy for the purpose of prescribing in naturopathic clinic.
3. Appraise the classical and current literature for simplex and complex flower essence therapies for management of emotional states and conditions.
4. Formulate complex flower essence prescriptions and calculate appropriate dosage instructions.
